Orchard
10 minutes
solo player

There are just sixteen months' challenges on this sheet, which should be enough to keep you busy for while.

There's also a link to Mark Tuck's challenge-page at BoardGameGeek, so you can easily join up with other regular harvesters.

Of course, with repeated play, you'll get a better idea of how the deck's made up - what card patterns exist.

When re-playing the challenges, you can do the same one several times, or jump from one to another to try to reduce the "I remember what came next" experience.

Printing

It's created at A5 size, which is half of A4.

Fun games that are available from FunGames4CasualPlayers

Orchard itself

Gentle challenge

Palm Island

A very small solo game, based on but seventeen cards - an island game that truly does fit into your palm.

Jekyll vs Hyde

For two players who enjoy the cut and thrust of a trick taking game, this is of incomparable value.

Merchants of Dunhuang

A (perhaps the best) four player game set in a medieval market - inexpensive, but very rich in challenge and versatility.

Maquis

A solo game in which one must achieve two daring missions as a member of the French Resistance - the Maquis.

Black Sonata

A solo searcher sets out to track down and unmask Shakespeare's "Dark Lady" as she traverses the streets of London. Much deductive thinking!

Mr. Jack

For two players, this game brings head scratching a'plenty, and even the occasional fluttering heart - truly!
